I. The definition of “BAPTIZO” *

In the times of Roman slave-holding society, advances in hygiene took place, and an owner on occasion had to wash freshly purchased slaves that would serve in the house or attend to their lord.

After this “hygiene ritual,” the owner could give a new name to the slave — one which was convenient to him. For example, if the slave reminded him of, let's say a flat-iron, then he would call him “iron.” He could give a slave a human name or animal name. Remember your childhood, when playing with friends, you gave each other nicknames based on associations? Remember how those nicknames sometimes stuck with your friends and after many years passed, the nicknames remained.

* This act of “bathing-hygiene” was called “baptizo,” which means “purification, ablution, submersion in water” in Greek.

Baptizo-purification is inseparable from an ancient Egyptian, ancient Greek mystery. It is water ablution before appearing in front of the god's face (during prayer or service).

In such manner, purification-submersion-baptizo carries the outward and inward meaning — to clean up, detach from outside and inside. Baptizo can be voluntary or compulsory. An example with a slave — it is a compulsory baptizo; religious service — it is a voluntary baptizo (act of purification). The highest form of baptism — liberation of the highest inner-me, or soul, from all types of karma, genetic contaminations and one's own sins.

By Apostle Paul: the utmost baptizo — is a baptizo by death.

“Don't you know that all of us christen [committed baptizo] in the name of Christ, christened in His death [committed baptizo]? Therefore we were buried together with Him, with christening [baptizo] in death, so that just like Christ, we would resurrect from the dead by the glory of our Father and to walk in the new life. Because if we are connected with Him, in resemblance of His death, then must be [connected] and with [resemblance] of the resurrection, knowing that, our infirm-man is crucified with him, so that his body was cleansed of sins, so we would not be slaves to our sins, because the dead is freed from sins. Because if we died together with Christ, then we believe that we will also live with Him; knowing that Christ resurrected from the dead, does not die anymore; death does not have power of Him. Because He died, died for the sin; and he lives for the God" (Apostle Paul, Romans, 6:3-10)

What you should pay attention to here: that all religious teachings that exist or ever existed in this world are teachings from the other world — a place where all depart to after death. Therefore the path does exist. Indeed, someone brought these teachings.

At the birth of humanity, for some reason there were many who brought these teachings and they were called gods. What is important to know: gods were vulnerable while existing in a human's body. And they were immortal while existing in their own natural form.

For a person, death in direct meaning is the stoppage of the bodily "inner-I." If he or she has been reborn (resurrected) into the body, it means that worn-out body has died, and a new body, after going through the baptizo of death, has been born. His or her bodily "inner-I" has been transformed, and has become different.

A complete analogy would be a vulnerable god in a human body. Just a reminder, at the beginning of humanity, for some reason, there were many such creatures. As a result, there were many religious cults.

A question to the reader: If suddenly, today, something similar would happen in the traditionally monotheistic countries, what would happen to such a vulnerable immortal?

I know, a pause has appeared in your mind: you know the answer and are afraid of it; you do not want to see it. That is the reason for the pause.

Our personality is inseparable from our body. By influencing the body, the personality is also influenced and vice versa. If the body is transformed, then the personality is transformed as well. If the personality is transformed, then the body is transformed as well.

One of the options to influence the body through personality is to give a new name to the person. Designation of the name — it is an initiation, programming and influencing the person's psyche through emotions of deep unconscious, archaic feelings. This type of programming is done by all religions from the moment humans appeared. They create a behavioral and geometrical connection among generations. At the end, the meaning of the name is “to whom do you belong, what is your race-tribe, who is your overlord, who is your God?”

For example, in the areas where clan society has been preserved, no one cares what your name is. At the time of initial introductions, a question is asked: “What lineage do you belong to?” In other words, under whose protection are you under, who is responsible for you, and what kind of power do you represent?

In modern terminology, John the Baptist was liberating people from their sins — he was a sectarian-revolutionary, and took upon himself the function of the highest spiritual authority. This is a challenge to secular and spiritual authority. His fate was predetermined. Did he know it? I do not have any doubt about it. After all, he was considered a prophet. A prophet does not fear anyone or anything; he serves the knowledge that lies beyond the bounds of death.

Is it possible for the body to be liberated from the personality — that is committing the baptizo through death? It is possible, under the condition that a different interconnection of coordinates between brain, body, and nervous system has emerged. It is similar to a human coordinates, but is a different one. It is approximate to a human coordinates, but is a different one.

This book is about it.

In our culture, in order to convey the idea that one is from the people, but different is impossible without the term baptizo. However, there is nothing to hook in the brain; in other words, there are no roots, no such tradition in the minds — not mystical, spiritual, religious, scientific, or habitual.

I would like to remind you that before Christianity, our ancestors believed in different gods. In other words, psychologically, they were ready for the arrival of a god on the habitual level of thinking — not on the religious, not on the scientific, not on the mystical, just on the habitual level. The Saviour was accepted and recognized, even though no one had ever seen Him. People were believing in someone, whom they had never seen. God in the vulnerable human body and the culture of the sacrificial offering (which was the norm then) merged into one — one belief. The sacrificial offering is a culture/cult of protection. Holy blood was sacrificed in offering for YOU PERSONALLY.

At that time gods were walking among people, our ancestors. They were given birth to, in their environment. This was normal.

Later in time, this type of memory was rooted out of hearts and minds. And one book of our genetic memory — about our fathers, ancestors, and their beliefs — was substituted with another.

Speaking candidly, instead of a birth father, a stepfather has emerged. The history of our ancestors lives was rooted out and its place was taken by the Old Testament. Wise. Infinitely deep. But it is not the memory of my fathers. And now the civilized Christian world via scientific method is trying to reconstruct, do not be surprised, its ancestry, its own book of memory — from the stumps of bark, from broken roofing tiles — basically from the smoldering ruins.

It is no less deep and no less wise; and if it removed, then today's science would not even exist, and we would live and prosper in the Stone Age. I do not want to hurt anyone's feelings here, but science was born by a polytheistic civilization. We exterminated science and development for thousands of years, but did not succeed in its destruction. And now the civilized Christian world via scientific method is trying to reconstruct, do not be surprised, its ancestry — from the stumps of bark, from broken roofing tiles — basically from the smoldering ruins. We were pagans and believers in many gods. All of us, without exception.

What I would say is that as long as elements of nature exist, it means that conflicts among them also exist. When climate suddenly changes, then the god of one of the elements leads its "army" into foreign territory, earlier cultivated by someone else. The aborigines either adapted or disappeared, they were forced out by the law of the strongest.

What I would say is that as long as elements of nature exist, the pagan gods will not disappear. And, if suddenly by chance, the elements vanish, then together with them, we, religion and science will also disappear.

By giving explanations and building bridges of memory, I am moving along the borders of ancient mythical and modern rational languages. This is how one should read this book. Any other type of reading will create discomfort for the reader.

What will this type of uncomfortable reading look like?

For a modern, rational person, the mythical reasoning, vision and language is not easy. This type of language combines with a rational one — it is like an intellectual thought between being awake and asleep, as if between two worlds. This type of language submerges the individual, calms his picture of the outside world.

If the discomfort does arise anyway, it is better to pause for some time and to ask a question to yourself: That what you have read, what exactly is disturbing you — is it true or not true?

Is it possible for the personality to be liberated from the body? — that is committing the baptizo through death. It is possible under the condition that the different interconnection of coordinates between the brain, the body, and the nervous system has emerged. It is similar to a human coordinates, but is a different one. It is approximate to a human coordinates, but is a different one.

I speak of this on purpose, because the conflict in the minds of people already exists. The gods of polytheistic East have come to a Christian world — basically they are a kind of brothers, relatives to our rooted-out god, in whom our ancestors believed. They speak a different language and think in completely different ways.

A good example of two types of thinking is illustrated by a comparison of classical music and rock-and-roll. Both types are music, both use musical instruments, and, in both cases, they use the same notes. But for it to be more understandable, what I am trying to say is try to listen to classical music and rock-and-roll SIMULTANEOUSLY, in both ears, merged in one head.

A noise in your brain is guaranteed. After such noise-brain-mystical and religious “baptizo”... it will be difficult to socialize with such people, who are fully knocked out from any social communication norms.

I am not against Eastern gods, I am even for them. But, in order to understand their thoughts, we need to recollect their second / third cousin their god on their territory or his incarnation. It may be not as refined and advanced, but it may be more understandable and adequate. By remembering this forgotten, a little bit childish, somewhat naive, but sincere “dictionary” — maybe, after all, you will gain an opportunity to understand the refined gods — “the foreigners.”

This massive, unconscious occurrence — attractiveness to Eastern gods and teachings — speaks of one thing: something is holding back the human people from growing. There is no special secret in it: simply people are searching for the opportunity for growth, and growth without freedom is impossible.

But there is a big NO: the freedom is regulated, confined by society.

A slave can obtain freedom from its master. But for a free person to obtain liberation... This is possible under one condition: if you have accepted and understood in your own genetic culture, the first prayer that was given to the student and apostles by the teacher of salvation.

It starts from the simple and understandable words. It is understood by ANY person, in any region of the world, irrespective of religion, nationality, race and so on. It starts with the words “Our Heavenly Father”; it does not start with the words “Owner, Lord...”

Through time, step by step, we gradually lost the culture when the teacher, father, and god were one whole, undivided. It’s like we have grown up. You will not meet anyone with such psyche — not an apostle, not a prophet, not a god. Even if you do meet one of them, you will not recognize him or her, the “brand” is not high enough, and he has not been leveled up by mass media. Advertisement — moves commerce. This is what people say to me: “You as a product need to be correctly positioned in the marketplace.” However, I am still hoping that I live among people and not in the bazaar.

The first prayer begins with words “Our Heavenly Father.” It does not start with the words “Owner, Lord...” — during that time (two thousand years ago) this was not just simple revolution, it was a real, true religious COUP:

You stop fearing God as an Owner, as a Lord, and the environment of fear around God-the-Lord is substituted with an environment of love towards “God-the Father” inside of you.

He — the Beginning, the Father of all fathers. The same way like children love their parents, serve them, and are ready to give their life for them; the same is true for the Father of all fathers — all fathers will give their life, even more so.

Without "God-the-Father," we are without memory; if He does not exist, then our memory does not exist. People are searching for the final Baptizo, the final liberation, and never recognize it.

What else does one need to know in order to read this book further?

1. Jesus did not christen any of the known Apostles. From the unknown ones — no one knows; it may be that He christened someone.
2. John the Baptist was never a christianizer. He did not christen Jesus or anyone at all, ever. The water baptizo, the water submergence was handled without the cross.
3. The teaching about the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit did not exist during the times of John the Baptist or Jesus. In our mentality, it is acceptable to call him "John the Christianizer," but, in reality, he is John the Baptist, "submerger".

Therefore, the Apostle Paul is talking about baptizo with death or about submergence, but he is not talking about christening by the cross. This is the Path of the Savior, the path of Christ.

Generally speaking, this is a religious and mystical and scientific path simultaneously — not independent of one another, but in conjunction.

The Savior walked this path. Not by the book. Not by faith. He walked it in life. It is that what is being searched today in the East and doing this unconsciously.

In the East, they are searching for the path of death, the path of knowledge, and the manifestation of the ability to submerge into death. All at all, this is highest yoga, that no European has ever pass it. If this was not so, then a European teaching about the path to God — the Creator of all worlds, would have emerged; to the Father of all fathers. The teaching of submergence, the teachings about baptizo through death — it is not the fitness yoga.

In order to be ready for such a path, a specific psyche is required — one that has been readied by traditional culture for hundreds, thousands of years. This is a specific type of psyche where genetic-mythical realities, genetic-species realities, traditional-social realities are connected and collide with reality as is. Reason: The world does not stay in one place; it is always in motion, changing.

The mystically understood, scientifically explainable, rationally comprehended path — baptism via death — has become a screaming demand of our time; not only in the Western world, but also in the modern, turbulently informative, web-globalized world as a whole.

What is important to understand:

1. Baptizo through death is not self-destruction by your own hands.
2. It is a different interconnection of coordinates between the brain, body, and nervous system — similar to human, approximate to human, but completely different one.
3. This a different type of attention — similar to human, but different one.
4. It is a different center of gravity — not the unconscious one found in humans and animals, but a conscious one. Conscious — it means that your attention becomes different, absolutely different. It becomes gravitational.
5. As a result, it is a different energy exchange — a different type of breathing. It approximates human breathing, but is different.
6. This is how the unified, awakened trinity of nature looks like.
7. This pattern — somehow, it happened — is precisely corresponds to the three symbolic centers identified with Christianity as the savior cross, as a trinity of the Christ's flag — Father, Son, Holy Spirit.

By fact, it happened this way.

Reminding you of the questions.

1. What does the Final Baptizo mean?
2. What is a Gravitaneer?
3. What is the evolutionary, gravitational trance?

II. Gravitaneer™

Gravitaneer is a next evolutionary step of the humankind — the one who will follow human and will substitute him as a species, by following the path of nature's laws and leaning on them.

It does not matter if you accept the evolution or not. What is important here is that everyone knows: selection — is a change of the kind. In order for the further thought to be understood, register and remember it for yourself: selection — is a change of the kind.

Intrusion into human's DNA — attempts to modify it — is the same selection, but in human himself, not in dogs, cows or plants. It does not matter if you accept the evolution or not: selection within the species — is evolution. It is artificial, but it is evolution: artificial selection. If this concept is understood and you have accepted it, then there is a reason to read further.

It is important to understand: by the law of nature, a conscious evolution of the species is absolutely different from the artificial, medically-scientific selection.

1. Conscious evolution of the humankind — it is to follow the laws of nature.
2. Artificial — is a bioengineering attempt to improve weakened humankind.

The only similarity between them is that the evolution by nature and artificial selection are both selections. But! The bioengineered modifications are not selections by nature's laws of TRUTH. It turns out that in his understanding of nature, the Creator, the author of all living things and the Universe, looks inferior to humans bioengineers-modifiers. (All is leaning in this direction.)

We are not developing by the Creator and nature created by Him.
Conclusion: either we did not understand the laws of nature/laws of the Creator correctly — or suddenly the human has become smarter about the laws of nature/laws of Creator.

Modern civilization — is at the fork between traditional religious long-standing consciousness (the world does not change) and new, scientific-searching (world changes) minds.

In reality, a new religion has arrived: The Creator is wrong, the Creator made a mistake, human nature is not finished, so I the human will finish it, modify it and develop that which could not be achieved by the ONE WHO KNOWS EVERYTHING. The Creator ended up with such a restless human. He is sort of made in a mirror image, but is not satisfied and wants modifications: upgrade now!

Into our world a new religion has come. It already happened, but this is not yet understood, not recognized, and not seen by anyone. The new religion is where an artificially-selected human, modified via bioengineering, step by step, starts to substitute with himself the human created by the Creator or nature (whatever is more comfortable for you).

You can agree that the Creator is not his Father and nature is not his mother anymore.

A new psychology, new morals have been born into this world: nothing personal, it is just business. In such business, a new, different Buddha should arrive — or a different Savior — modified, advanced, with microchips. It is different, it offers a new Path, a new teaching. It kind of does not exist, but in the minds, in fact, it already exists. It just has not been verbally formalized.

“Nothing personal” — it is his moral principle. Don't you want to be advanced? For example, professional athletes are ready to try anything in order to achieve a result. Nothing personal, it's just the type of business we have. Then further, there will be our corruptor, a foreign one, “not ours, son of the ...”

All of us, step by step, will be ready psychologically for this new teaching. We are starting to wait for a “new messiah.” We are being readied steadily for the modifications and a different path via screens.

Think about it: For a person who is not successful or wealthy —or personally you — do you see a chance — to be more competitive, more successful, to solidify your positions or to climb higher, without putting a lot of effort. If you have “money” — then a chip can be inserted into the right section of the brain, or vertebrae and so on. Then later it could be changed, upgraded, reformatted.

For a human, artificial modification is a great temptation, the temptation of a kind of immortality. Moreover, it is packed like a sandwich with the butter of humanism. It is ready, eat it.

A question may arise to me: if I speak of such things, then what alternative do I offer?

My offer:

Gravitaneer, it is a next evolutionary step of the humankind — the one who will follow the human and will substitute him as a species, by leaning on nature's law.

Here is a further explanation:

First, you have to agree with the fact that human activity has led to changes in elements of nature — to be specific, the balance of power has changed in nature itself. Air-water-earth is the food borne by them — all has been changed by human activity in a short period of time. It is not like Earth has been hit by a large meteor and brought the polar night to the entire planet (beginning of sudden changes) — we have not reached this point yet, but our train is rushing forward, and there will be a stop in the “polar night.”

All biological species on Earth will be adapting to the newly developed reality by leaning on nature's mechanisms of survival, which are hundreds of millions of years old. I offer to the human to lean on THESE mechanisms, which are hundreds of millions of years old, and all living things are subjugated to them. They may be not as smart as humans, but they follow in the path of faith. Their faith in life is encoded, encrypted on the instinctual level. As a matter of fact, we also have instincts. We have something in common after all.

I offer to the human to lean on THESE principles — which are hundreds of millions of years old, and all living and nonliving things in the Universe are subjugated to them. Choose: either be an advanced, socially successful with microchip, just like a modern athlete on “fertilizers” — or a different type of interconnection of coordinates between brain, body and nervous system — the deliberate, understandable, acceptable and awakened Trinity of Nature. All living and nonliving things lean on it unconsciously — on an instinctive level. When the moment “x” arises, all of nature goes through an assessment of baptizo by death.

Deviation from the subject: Conversation with person of the muslim faith.

He said to me that he does not believe, does not understand and, as a result, does not accept the Christian Trinity.

To which I answered that Jesus (for Muslims, the prophet Isa) did not teach the Trinity to the apostles. He did not even perform christenings. The more or less modern cross (cross of Constantine, labarum) appeared a few centuries later. The trinity and cross sign also appeared a few centuries later. These are fundamental religious symbols in Christianity in which people have faith. Moreover, these symbols, over a thousand years became inseparable from Christ.

Symbols, in their own way, are visuals. They reflect the power of faith in Christ, and they have become inseparable from Him. This is known as faith, and faith does not require explanations. He as Muslim is not required to believe in that which is not provable and no one is obligated to prove to him what one believes in. Strangely, however, both sides want proof from each other, not faith.

Now follows the proof of the Trinity of Nature.

1. Agree with me, my friend, that everything that we see and do not see, from stars to atoms, have their own gravitational center.
2. The existence of the gravitational center is a fact. It exists in everything that we know and do not know; in everything that we see and do not see.

If this is accepted on the level of common sense, then agree with me that the gravitational center always balances in space. In other words, it is a manifestation of unconscious attention — just like in dance, everything is moving; nothing is staying in place.

Just like you do it in the Sufi dance. However, people do not live by spinning on the spot like the Sufi. They walk, sit, socialize, and work. If only the Sufi dance would awaken the gravitational center and, as a result, change the usual attention of the human to the gravitational, then this would, in its own way, be the method of transformation — transformation from the human to a different species.

In fact, this does not exist.

3. Attention is capable of uniting with gravitational center and stopping “inner I”. Mind, the spirit of human separates from the human body and awakens different type of interconnection between brain, body and nervous system. That is how Gravitaneeer arrives into this world; from people but different. It is how consciously manifest the Trinity of Nature (gravitational center, gravitational attention, and corresponding to it gravitational type of breathing)

The liberation from the human body, mind, spirit accomplishes its journey through the worlds and nature’s elements — from what is made and weaved in this world. Gravitaneeer come in touch with that.

4. Agree with me that everything that you see and do not see, know and do not know, is created from gravitation. It is a completely different informational space. It is a completely different “library” of knowledge. It is the book of books, the book of Life and Death. Everything that you see and do not see, know and do not know, is created from gravitation, including your brain.

The key to your own mind — is your own attention. The type of the attention you have is the type of mind you have. If your attention is gravitational, then your mind exists in the united space of gravitation. It is a completely different “library,” a different database.

5. The energy, the power of life in elements — just like breathing — sooner or later ends. Moreover, the elements transform from one state of their “I”, crossing the borders of death, and reborn into a different element again.

During the process of transition, the memory on the path of rebirth, flickers out. However, the principle of the trinity remains unchanged.

This type of trinity is not known to Christians, Muslims, or others. It is not known in science. What I am trying to say is that if anyone from them knew it, then he would offer the method, the path — transforming from one element of nature in which humans exist into an element of gravitation, in which the entire Universe exists. This is a bit more than our beautiful planet Earth.

6. The interconnection of coordinates between brain, body, and nervous system of a human go through the baptizo of death, dipping into it, submerging into it, and cleansing with it, reborn in new incarnation — Gravitaneer; from the people but different.

<end of conversation with person of the Muslim faith>

To breed strong, powerful vegetation or animals, the best seeds, and the best animals are selected.

Skipping all the morality, just essence, nothing personal. Humanity does not go through this selection, not by nature and not via artificial selection. It is the way a human turned out to be. As a result, by breaking all laws of nature, humankind is weakening. The artificial lifespan on pills and reproduction of humankind via pills — means only one thing: the species is successfully accumulating degradation. It is also a type of selection. If this thought is understandable to you and does not scare you, read further.

The word Gravitaneer is made out two words: gravitation and pioneer. A human crossing consciously and responsibly, with understanding why and for what, from the element of air into an element of gravitation, becomes a Gravitaneer.

With clear, precise, and sensible differentiation: here I am, a human, and here — I am, a Gravitaneer. Moreover I am, myself, awake and with a submerged personality, is the one who makes a choice. I control the process that can move into the direction of the Gravitaneer, by manifesting sensible understanding of differences between the Gravitaneer vs. human and by continuing to develop of self in the element of gravitation as personality.

Under these circumstances, I can always go back to the beginning; to the point of reference and analyze whether I need this or not. Do I get qualitative advantages, a quality of success by nature? This is the psychology of young and pliable people. The Gravitaneer — is a psychology of pliability. A person, as an individuality makes a choice to submerge there or not.

What is important to understand is that personality in any case will change. It is like moving to a different country; time is needed for adaptation. However, this will be happening in your accustomed traditional environment. Thus the conflict is minimized.

It is important to understand that society, in any case, is conflicting. The conflict in society is needed so that it would move forward instead of standing still in one spot. However, if society is aggressive (by traditional measure of this word) then, for a person who is changing, it becomes dangerous, even if he is not aggressive, does not bite or jump on anyone. Nevertheless, he still needs to deal with "What, are you better than us? Are you trying to separate yourself from the group?"

In other words, for the conflict to be minimized, society must not only be accepting but also value the personal freedom and protect it. After all, why should it matter to you how I think if I am not destroying anything around me and do not harm anyone?

You all know the term, sect-follower. When you hear this term, do you become unconsciously or instinctively scared? The mind paints the sect-follower — somewhat similar to an extremist. However, any personality — in itself is a sect, an individualized sect of one person.

I speak of this intentionally, because over time I have seen many fools who watch out for the innocence of the group, during and after the communist era. These types of people are the same breed; they do not care about God or no God — they simply watch out. They have always been like this, even during the time of Buddha, the time of Christ, and during the era of communists, fascists, and anyone else.

When personality is being dictated by someone how to think, sometimes it is done gently and carefully, checking in all directions, trying to hear the feedback from the group, just like in the late phases of the USSR. Alternatively, they can make a hole in the head, and look through it, trying to determine what person is hiding from the group, just like during the dark ages. There are plenty of people with schizophrenia, constantly worrying about the moral norms and principles of the group. Moreover, there is always someone around to hire them.

I will repeat myself; I am intentionally talking about this. In order for the personality to develop, it needs personal freedom, at least in its own mind. In other words, it is respect toward the person.

Why do we need a Gravitaneer — if a human is already good enough?

Submergence into the gravitational environment, it is a baptizo by gravitation. This is a different environment, from which all have come to this world and to which all will return. Gravitation is the environment of immortality, a space of eternity.

You can agree with me that society's technical, informational, and social foundation is speeding up so fast that a regular person is no longer capable of keeping up with it. He or she begins to fall behind. It is frustrating. Moreover, what is happening today in the world is a result of accumulated frustration.

Meanwhile, life goes on. We all live longer. However, competition is younger and younger. Reason: youth is pliable, simply because the personality has not been fully formed, not programmed and no one yet has drilled a "hole" in the brain. Youth is pliable — pliability like a Mowgli (if he got something, then he got it for life).

Conclusion: education, acceptance of knowledge by nature is the straightest path — for this, the psyche must be pliable, not in the chains, tied up with rope thoroughly. Inner liberty it is an advanced culture of self control.

It is a medical fact that in adulthood, people lose pliability. The reason for this is that one's personality has been developed. The learning ability of a Mowgli has been exhausted, burned out. The pliability nearly zero. Full stop and then hello Alzheimer — let's go into childhood.

Being a Gravitaneer is about being in constant pliability.

The question then: Does society need this? If yes, then what kind?

Next question: Does a human need this? If yes, then what kind?

* * * *

The transformational zone from a human to a Gravitaneer is a zone of training. The psychological “muscle” can also be trained, just like physical muscles of the body.

Gravitaneer is this and that — both muscles are being trained simultaneously. For example, if you are thinking while your body resides in the gravitational space, then it means that your body resides in the best possible ideal balance; the thoughts are not losing clarity.

For example, you are training your body. Your attention is not getting distorted, jumping from one object to another; the body resides under constant internal and outer attention. Under control.

Maybe something similar exists in the East in some way in the minds, but by fact it does not. The term gravitation appeared there only yesterday. How much time is needed for it to be assimilated and become rooted? Psychologically, this can be compared to a case if suddenly a European Buddha was born in Europe. One single term, “gravitation” requires incredible re-thinking and re-evaluation of an entire thousand years of civilization. Conceptually, philosophically, technically, and psychologically (social upbringing) that is a completely different world. You will not get far here on yoga.

A different approach is needed here.

Question, is Buddha a Gravitaneer or a human? The type of an answer you will give, that is the place you will get to. You can agree that Buddha — is from different informational world. It is obvious. If this was not so, then all would be Buddhas.

The difference between Gravitaneer vs human — is a constant balance that does not exhaust, does not weaken, and does not suck life out of a person.

To value and understand this, how important it is, do the test.

Try to concentrate on any object, external or internal, and you will quickly see how important stable balance is; and how fast the life forces are drained and fatigue arrives in such situation.

Conceptually, the yoga system should be training the unity of concentration and balance. Without such training, this is not yoga, it is just fitness-imitation. Ask yourself a question: what kind of yoga took roots in the West?

Bottom line: if you would like to achieve any serious result, you must understand the culture of international civilizations — culture that is focused on psycho-physical components of a human being. That said, understanding should not be on the level of the local village but on the world level. (It is hard not to remember the guardians of the correct way of thinking... It is as if the village nationalism standard erected to the rank of absolute.)

Gravitaneer — it is a qualitatively different mind. He is the planetary species, he is not a species of one village, no matter how big it is. The internet is a planetary environment, and banking (movement of money) is a planetary environment; the high qualifications (professionalism); it is an international environment. Question then: who would not want to conform to the level of such environment?

Gravitaneer's mindspace expands by means of the body's space and the body's space expands by means of the mind. It sounds simple, but to do this, a Trinity of Nature needs to be united in one united whole.

However, for the Trinity of Nature to be united in one whole, one must know how to submerge into it. Meditation — it is not a baptizo, meditation cannot help here. For this we need trance; the evolutionary trance, the gravitational trance and very importantly the testable trance.

Such trance must be provable, without any kind of gimmicks, such as "trust my words." I am not asking for you to believe just in my words. I have always proved that which I have spoken about, and there will be no other ways. To get to the trance-gravitational environment just on the "trust my words" — it just like trying to get to needle's hole on the camel, in our earthly conditions.

The transformational phase from a human to a Gravitaneer is training; this is a trance-gravitational human. This is a human, whose mind is entering into a new for him informational space of existence — it is the space of nature's element "gravitation." Everything that you see and everything that you do not see, all that you know and do not know — the entire Universe is weaved from gravitation. You are included and made out of the same material.

As a result, I will recite the bible, there is a person who is created from ashes, and there he will go back. And there is a Gravitaneer, weaved from gravitation and there he will go back. One will go back to earth ashes, the other will go back to gravitational environment of the Creator.

Small deviation from the subject.

Any type of reformatting of personality, intervention and reprogramming — is a change of personality. Such changes in personality can lead to opposition with society, and can create confrontation in traditional environment. Thus, traditional teachings that have gone through their own dark time, when people were tortured, know very well how dangerous it is. Human turns into hysteric person, social hysteria becomes the norm, and the government is not built on the awareness, consciousness and responsibility. In such cases governing is built on fear.

A massive Stockholm syndrome is created. Super dictatorship. The terror and massive social insanity becomes a norm of life. And the lower class, by the principles of the Stockholm syndrome, look at their oppressors with loving eyes.

The traditionally formed society (more specifically their elite), having an experience of thousands of years, including torture of human mind and spirit, clearly understand that changes to personality, intervention, reformatting, reprogramming is dangerous. If it is not done for the benefit of the society, it means it is dangerous: hazardous sect of fanatics or madman.

You can agree that changes are happening; from the dark medieval time we got to a democratic twilight of humanity through the slaughter house. In other words, people no longer have ignorant consciousness, they are kind of informed, kind of educated — educated to think and use modern instruments. With their help, a society's life is improving. At best, the minds of people reside in the twilight zone.

However, to move forward, it is necessary for the personality to be free. Freedom is a zone of high competence and accountability in front of society. In other words, the transition from the human to Gravitaneer, requires to be deeply human cultured. And this is a different society by few degrees — that belong to different information environment.

Gravitaneer it a different species, distinct from human. These distinctions are more than serious, it is a different kind by evolutionary-biology. From the people — but not human anymore.

A transition from the dark mind to twilight mind, this is not a light yet. The democratic freedom as of now is twilight and fog; personality is not liberated. Because it has not arisen to the level of pliability and is UNABLE to develop further, other than via the artificial path of modification of human. The human that no longer able to keep up with informational and technical development.

The conflict is evident. There are more and more people that cannot keep up and they are turning their heads in the reverse direction — their feet want to move forward to the conveniences, but the head wants to go back, into the era of the Middle ages. Look at today's world, and you can clearly see how the people's world has split up. Both sides are trying to bluntly “take advantage of” the other side, use their energy or technology or masses.

The two human worlds have declared war on each other — not the total war, but the war of enslavement. And here I am, Master HORA, with my Gravitaneer, saying hello to all on the twilight side. My greetings to all who want to wake up.

I have made my choices among people (Practice HORA leaders). These are not the one's who climb to the top by stepping on others — by manifesting true, animal principle of nature, the animal principles of success of the kind. I chose those that are in their own way “hippies” moved aside and are unable to step on heads, in the manifestation of their success.

I love people who have not happened yet. People who do not walk on top of the other people heads. I chose the ones who are able to think and who are educated, and which social environment they exist in is not important. I chose the ones who would feel pain by stepping on someone's head. (That is why they are not so successful.) Among them many people do this out of NECESSITY — so they can feed their children; provide for education, raise them into decent people, and so on. No one has annulled parenting responsibility.

I hope that I was able to show what a sect is and what it can be on a different scale from regular person to the incredible scale of the masses.

We have reached the point where you can continue reading, or you can stop. I would recommend to stop for a brief period and to reflect: do you need a liberation inside of you? Or do you have more than plenty of freedom outside?

Do you need the plasticity like that of young Mowgli, capable of change, capable of development? Or is what you have now more than sufficient? — you already happened. If you “already happened,” then this is not your book, do not waste your time.

III. Question: What is evolutionary, gravitational trance?

The main distinctions of Gravitaneer from the human:

- 1) Human has an unconscious center of gravity just like an animal
- 2) As a consequence, unconscious attention, which is connected with such unconscious gravity center.
- 3) The concentration of attention — is a key to consciousness.
This you need to know.
- 4) The key to successful attention resides in nature's unconscious, gravitational center. This center is in your stomach.
- 5) Gravitational center in all living and nonliving things on Earth acts in its own way as a gyroscope.

The human's gravitational “gyroscope” twitches in all directions, taking away energy from the environment of consciousness (the mind) and through attention, concentration of attention starts to suck up strength from the organism. We have already tried a few experiments: attention plus balance exhausts a person very fast. (see experiments above)

Individual's strength is consumed to stabilize a fuzzy, "floating" picture. The picture is being filled in (finalized) by the brain. This is the type of agreement the brain has with the external world, to which a human adapts. This is similar to a person who, for example, has bad eyesight or weakened hearing.

You should reach this conclusion for yourself: The more stable the gravitational center in the stomach, then the more stable is the gravitational center of attention. One is in the stomach, the other — is in the forehead.

Let's perform a few experimental tests of aptitude towards gravitational concentration:

1.) Slightly concentrate a little of your attention on any object and you will immediately feel light tension between your eyebrows. Try it. Have you felt enough to be convinced? Then let's move further.

2.) Try to exert a little physical effort as if you are trying to pick up something, pushing, or simply trying to stand up from a chair. You will immediately feel the tension inside your stomach. Have you felt enough to be convinced? Then let's move further.

3.) So for these two types of attention to be maintained as one whole, the breathing out of necessity almost immediately stops. Check it. This is how the third center stands out — the gravitational center of breathing. You will feel how fast strength is disappearing. Tiredness and exhaustion emerge almost immediately. Have you felt it to be convinced? Then let's move further.

4.) In order to continue with the experiments, I will first provide a short explanation. You just performed three experiments successfully and confirmed them. In principle, you have exhibited the same pure pliability as a youthful Mowgli.

And now we have a "situation." Please repeat the same three experiments and confirm that for some reason they are not working. The concentration becomes different. The first time around, everything worked; the second time, it's not the same. The concentration, for some reason, is smeared.

It just worked and now all is smeared. Reason: during the second attempt you are no longer youthful, honest, pure pliable Mowgli. Your own personality comes out and tries to subjugate all these experiences to itself.

This is how your personality materializes itself, which is already not young and not pliable like Mowgli, who is submerged in learning. In one case, you were back in your youth, like a child who is happy about receiving a toy. In the second case, this child has suddenly grown up; as a human he becomes interested to find out what is inside this toy. And he begins to break it, just like you did when you were young. During the experiment you did this instantaneously.

What does this mean? It means that it is heard to teach you as a human Mowgli the gravitational practice of concentration in three main centers (head, stomach, center of chest). Your restless "inner-I" is hindering it — as if it is Pinocchio, who is sticking his nose everywhere. This is good for development based on scientific search, but even then to the known limits.

The difficulty resides in the ability to stop curiosity, the ability to stop this kind of "Pinocchio nose." It is in principle the stoppage of your own "inner-I." This is not death, but resembles it: personality stops and resides in an environment of thoughtless.

I can imagine how this can scare the "guardians of everything": someone attacking the personality! Maybe, in their view, someone has stolen a disciple right under their nose. However, in reality, the "inner-I" has come back to its origin — back to the moment it was awakened in its world. It is like being reborn.

This, of course, is not a baptizo by death, but it is similar, very close to it; because this is how the liberation of personality from any program happens. The programs do not disappear, but personality stands on the side of them and can observe and investigate them. This is how trance looks like.

It has no relationship to meditation, because meditation does not have roots and connections with the ancient world, ancient memory.

This type of trance — is a book of our forefathers, the one we lost. Moreover, meditation — is what has been invented on the fly, by looking to the East. In the East, people train trance. And meditation is only one spoke from the large wheel of trance.

For a trance Gravitaneer, the gravitational trance is a wheel in which ALL spokes reside — in its own way, are methods of how to reach the center of the wheel.

Deviation from the subject:

There are two types of Mowgli; one we know of and the other one we do not. The first type is human-animal, and the second Mowgli — is a social person who grew up like a Mowgli but not among animals but among humans.

A human Mowgli, who grew up among people, not among animals, “breaks toys,” disassembles them into the atoms, digging for the essence of things. Doubt — is part of the scientific method.

However, the Mowgli who grew up among animals does not break acquired skills, like toys, because his life depends on these skills. His knowledge — is like faith, no doubt. If he begins flirting with his experience, he will lose his life. That is the difference.

What are the similarities between the animal Mowgli and the human Mowglis? Both are hard to re-educate into another type of social reality, social living, and a different informational environment. During the attempt to transfer the Mowgli human-animal into the society of Mowgli-humans, the Mowgli-animal will resist with all his power. Because he has acquired experience in the different social environment (among animals), he has developed his own worldview, life map, and how to survive in it.

The people’s desire is to pull him to them and teach him new skills, but he views this through his own worldview and tries to translate it into his world. The world, where actions are done without a doubt, the world that is familiar to him. This is where he grew up and acquired his experience of survival.

The same thing happens to the Mowgli-human. It is possible to give him a new skill, and he will take it if the benefit is visible and the advantages are understandable. However, after some time he will strive to take this experience and advantages and jam them into his own developed world view and experience of how to survive in it. Refer to the experiments you just did. You did not even fully learn a skill, you were barely exposed to it, but you are immediately trying to adapt it to yourself and stand ABOVE it. This is important to understand: to STAND ABOVE IT vs. to become one with the new skill and unite with it. This is a psychology of invader with all the consequences that follow from it.

What kind of conclusion should one make? If the understanding is missing in culture and tradition that the alive alive gravitational center exists, and the understanding of the importance of concentration of attention is also missing, then the understanding of the interconnection between human with the world of universal gravitation is also missing.

From where then will the understanding come from that Trinity, manifested in the Gravitaner, is leading him into the unified informational environment of existence? Leading him into united informational law, to which all objects in the Universe comply with.

It is a different world, and it differs from the customary world we are used to no less than the world of Mowgli-human (social human) vs. the world of Mowgli-animal.

What does the experience of “breaking the toy” tell us? — It is to enter into the transfer with the self, with the unsure self (inner-I). This leads to the consequences.

Transfer with self — it is “breaking the toy,” studying it and be in doubt, you have not solidified the skill — but already starting breaking it. In order to solidify such skills, a Gravitaner is needed, not a yogi and not a scientist. Only the Gravitaner in his psycho-environment can easily hold the attention of the “breaker” without putting much effort.

Knowing human nature, I can say that from now on the Gravitaners are going to be born to the world. Moreover convinced that they are truly so.

To pre-empt this notion, I am letting you know that the quality of Gravitaner is tested via Master HORA tests. Pre-empting things one more time: I have not shown these tests to anyone. Just like it is common in such cases, this knowledge I am keeping inside the family. It is a guarantee that tests will not be distorted and re-formatted.

Deviation from the subject:

A thousand years after Buddha and his teaching, a different Buddha arrived in this world — Bodhidharma. With him a new teaching has arrived, Chan-Buddhism, better known in its Japanese version, Zen-Buddhism.

Let's transfer this picture to the West. The patriarch of the Roman church has more or less accepted evolution; if we add trance to this more or less, then we will arrive at a new, trance-evolutionary, trance-gravitational Christian teaching. In two words, trance-Christianity. (It sounds almost like Chan-Buddhism.)

Is this is possible? Yes, possible. But not today. The idea of Gravitaneer still needs to mature inside society, inside the collective thought, and inside the collective mind.

This is possible in the future because this approach brings together East and West and simplifies understanding on the spiritual level. It is the same thing as if a brother meet his brother with whom he did not get along at one point. It is from the realm of fantasy. However, everything is possible in this life.

My experience of working with people has proven that the human essence of breaking toys — it is practically uncured passion in him. Just barely having got into a transfer with Master, the person immediately runs to initiate the transfer with another person in order to soothe his ego-inner-I, to gain respect in his own eyes and in the eyes of others. I could not do anything about it.

Decades have passed since then. For all of this time, I have tried to explain this to the person: if the experience has not been solidified in the environment of Gravitaneer, it will be erased very fast in the environment of regular people, in the attempt of trying to teach them.

In order for this thought to be understood, I will open a bit more of the details of the anatomical changes that happen with the Gravitaneer. The gravitational essence changes the anatomy of the human to such an extent that he cannot speak with his own usual voice; he cannot speak at all. The reason for it: the organs in his body are moving from their positions, such is the forceful influence of gravitational center. The process is absolutely without pain and is maximally comfortable.

The person's voice box, vocal cords, nervous system, and spinal column are connected between each other and unite in such a way that in the result the sound and the organs through which the gravitational-nervous connection enter into is a different interconnection. In order to learn how to speak by using common for a person sounds requires a lot of time.

In order to learn this requires almost singing. (It kind of looks like performing the mantra or worship services.) This type of speech forces assembling of the words to be a bit different; one must speak almost using verses. Rational and irrational speech is united in one system of thought and transfer of information. Delayed by 5 min

As a result, in order to understand this creature, to comprehend and accept information from him, one must himself reside on the "gravitational territory."

Earlier in this book, I used examples from gravitational training for a reason. In this training I use only two words, yes and no. As you know, everyone understood, what means yes in action and what means no.

This type of training happens immediately, without any preparation (how to stand correctly, how to move correctly, etc.) typically it would requires years and years. Such training leans on instinctual knowledge exclusively. You are that, what you are as an instinct, and the training hones in on what you are, your natural potential.

The dynamic skills on the basis of instinct come out on top only under one condition: if your typical coordinates are transferred from unconscious nature's trinity, even artificially (in a Master's environment) into the zone of gravitational trinity. The instinctual skills reside there. Moreover, it is no less than one billion years old.

The dynamic practice in such style and psyche I am talking about has inexhaustible depth. However, the truth is that this is a very narrow path, and on the scale of biological evolution of humankind, it is not productive. We live in a different society, and it has different psyche demands for the development of the future. However, it is important to understand these nuances. These are conclusions I made from my own real experience (time-existence-development).

A reason why am I explaining all this: Let's assume a person has received knowledge from me, and now tries to explain it to someone else; what language does he use to do that? The answer is obvious: on his or her own human, habitual energetic plane. As a result, together with the sound, he quickly descends from the plane of not-yet-solidified knowledge/skills into the skill that has been acquired over decades, say 30 years. The question is who will win over whom? The new knowledge or the already matured human Mowgli?

During the 1990s I encountered this incurable problem during the time of teaching the dynamic training. Students never got a chance to acquire the knowledge, not solidifying it, went out — no, ran out — into the outside world and got into the transfer with others. There is nothing I could do about it.

The reason: A complete lack of understanding within the culture and tradition of what is obedience and why it is needed in this case.

Basically, the goal of the dynamic system of martial arts is inflicting the maximum peak damage. It is possible to assure yourself the absolute defense when someone is inflicting the maximum damage, if you know that other side of the coin. The ultimate level — is the ability to annihilate the enemy rapidly, quietly, and most importantly painlessly.

I am explaining this for a reason, so that it will be understood that baptizo by death is a scientific-mystical, spiritual warrior's method. The one who hasn't died multiple times and hasn't gone through such baptizo on the brink, cannot be compassionate to the enemy from whom the life is being taken. He must do this painlessly. This is how a noble warrior is raised.

Such training was happening in the Christian environment, it meant to be able to raise noble, compassionate Christian warrior.

I have no doubt that my thoughts in the near future, for sure, will become the physiological basis of the dynamic training methods, which have one goal — annihilation of the opponent rapidly and without pain. The goal of such teaching: a human while going through various situations, must retain his/her humanity.

The reality is that people used to kill other people and will continue to do so. For thousands of years, we have been submerged in compassion; it is a way of our fathers. This way needs to be protected, preserved under any conditions; even if your enemy is an animal, reserve yourself and do not become similar to an animal.

Creation of such training is a unique type of psychology. It is an extreme training that requires high morals, high decency and the ability to submerge into the condition “you are killing — you are being killed,” and sooner or later you will start hearing the voice of death. There is no enemy, but you hear the breath of death; you are not being attacked, but you hear the breath of death. This training happens on the maximum edge of injury. The trust in a partner must be without doubt. This is not the toy that is allowed to be broken. This training without question is a spiritual one.

All other types of training (different psychological angle) can never submerge a person into the maximum, ultimate inner depth — the zone of training baptizo by death. (Comparatively) This is a somewhat different theme that requires separate expansion, that is why I am using the term “comparatively.” The way is shown, but it has not been expanded on.

The person who has been trained within such methods has gone through a high level of upbringing in morals and ethical qualities — his hands cannot inflict harm. Because you are trained to control the edge, where the breath of death moves. This type of person cannot inflict harm to the innocent person; he has high morals and control. However, this person is capable of stopping a dangerous animal in the skin of the human.

Example: people who were training under me at that time can confirm that I performed throws and grips with the knife, using a blade. However, no one got any cuts, even when the throw/grip was at the throat, knee, or wrist. No one was traumatized, and there was no single cut. You can ask if this is true or not. These people — witnesses are still alive. Let one of them tell you that “Master is lying.”

This form of training simply never existed in our mass culture and traditions. That is why we have the dynamic martial systems that are absolutely not spiritual. For example, can you imagine boxing or martial arts like SOMBO with religious content and in monks’ clothing? However, this is the difference between the East’s dynamic martial arts and the Western training; they are inseparable from the spiritual-ethical religious traditions. Inseparable. They are the methods of SUBMERGENCE into their mystical, religious components of their culture.

These spiritual forms of training are absent in our mass culture and tradition and never existed in our society. You can agree that all religions of this world lean on the teachings that came into this world from the world where everyone at the end departs to after death.

Question: if you do not know how to die, then you do not know the way after death. You are not ready for such a path — no, not to die, but specifically the path of submergence. The road is covered by darkness.

Application of the Western meditation (or the Eastern modified meditation) to this subject at best is absurd, at worst is a mental breakdown. The Western meditation appeared practically yesterday, it does not have roots such as the path of death and lacks mystical incarnation through baptizo by death (as method). As a result, from the contemplation (meaning of the word meditation) it transitioned into imagery, conjecture and autosuggestion territory.

One can convince himself anything, but this is the path of illusion, the environment of delusion. It is one thing when the ancient god Hypnos brings about illusions; it is another thing when an adept is trying to rush in there. In order to not become the hostage of illusionary lies, a rational mind type is required.

The territory and environment of sleep delusions is the kingdom of Hypnos. Hypnos lives on the edge of the world and the sun never reaches him. When you open your eyes and wake up from a dream, Hypnos remains there, where the sun does not exist; while you appear in the territory of light — where the sun is shining — your mind is awakened, and you do not remember anything, except a few separate fragments.

A meditation based on imagination — is a territory where there is no sun. The Hypnos god must be treated with respect in order to have good sleep vs. delusions while awake. Also, we should not forget that his twin brother Thanatos is a god of death. I will not even speak further about the other part of the family.

It is possible to consider a question: why did I stop the dynamic training? These type of trainings are meaningless until the acceptance of the Gravitaner by the masses is created. This is my final professional opinion. It is not my lifestyle — to cater and conform to the common stream of superficial knowledge.

I am not looking for conflict. However, my explanations can evoke various type of negativity. Just imagine that these people for 20, 30, or 40 years trained and submerged into some sort of “meditative” existence... This is some kind of supported subculture with mass media, movies, books, music, travel, and pop idols — it is a big business, with billions of dollars.

I am appealing to the ageless common sense and pliable, young individuals who are searching. Either you will be caught in the grinder, simply because it's fashionable, in style, cool and on trend and will fill its coffers — or you start to have a good handle on what is hidden behind the term baptizo by death, step by step. The apostle Paul, of course, is not Buddha, is not on trend, is not fashionable, and is not a popular yogi. But he is an Apostle.

Trance-baptizo™ through death

Western meditation, its psychology, and that which is implied by meditation does not have any relationship to Dhyān, Ch'an or Zen. Question: In what manner a Christian culture with its own developed style of thought, with its own formed genetics, can become Dhyān, Ch'an or Zen? As the scientists say, behavior impacts genetics, and genetics impact behavior.

Dhyān is Indian. When Dhyān came to China with Bodhidharma, it did not become the Dhyān-Buddhism, it transformed there into Ch'an-Buddhism. For China this was quite normal and natural, simply because before it, the Dao movement for thousands of years shamanized there — in other words, it submerged into a trance.

The same thing happened in Japan. Zen-Buddhism outside of Shintoism would not have been accepted due to the absence of soil — shaman-priest like, mystical, religious trance-soil. Question: what kind of relationship does the European meditation-contemplation have with the shaman civilization of Europe?

That civilization for more than a thousand of years has been methodically cut out, burned with the fire from the European genetics. I am appealing to the ageless common sense and young people: evolutionary trance, gravitational trance, scientific thought — it is that to what your psyche is predisposed to. The next evolutionary step of the humankind, a human will make consciously™. You and people in the East are ready for it. You in your own way, them in their own way.

I would not be surprised if today or tomorrow its own variation of Buddhism appears in Europe, and it would not be called Zen, Ch'an. It would be called Trance-Buddhism — trance-evolutionary, trance-gravitational Buddhism.

Everything is possible in this world; the appearance of a European Buddha is also possible. Moreover, yoga could also transform into trance-evolutionary, trance-gravitational European rational yoga, from the entangled Eastern ether planes. Everything is possible.

What does the human Mowgli who grew up among humans depict? Example: test experiments for the concentration of attention. You barely got a proof of knowledge, immediately raced to destroy it. This is how humans work from early childhood. He has an inquisitive mind. It is hard to educate such a human to the controlled, navigable evolutionary trance, gravitational trance, HORA trance.

Trance is not a toy. One can break oneself.

I will remind you from the history of the ancient civilized Europe (at that time it was not in the West or North, at that time it was in the South). The ancient god Thanatos, god of death, had a twin brother Hypnos, god of dreams — the god who brought on illusions. To try and break trance just like a toy, just due to simple curiosity — it the same thing as to try to break Thanatos. It is impossible to break him; before you will have to meet his brother and enter into the world of illusions. And that is the world of madness, the world of delusions — there is no sun there.

A transition from the unconscious gravitational center into the conscious one changes the way the two brain hemispheres work. There is nothing dangerous in it, the human himself is dangerous with its psyche of the child that likes to break toys. A Mowgli-human breaks toys; that is how he works, that is his essence. He cannot not do that. He does it always.

The trance by itself is not dangerous — if you are treating it similarly as let's say a fire, with respect and humility. You do that unconsciously, understanding it is dangerous. You are not climbing into the fire with your head or hands and do not try to walk with bare feet over charcoal like the fakirs. In other words, you unconsciously respect the fire. You are afraid of it and also need it. So you found territory where you have made a contract with it: you are helping me (warming and protecting from the animals and make food juicy and digestible) and I respect you and for all of that thank you — by bringing sacrifices to you. Today this kind relationship does not exist, but we end up staying with our fire for a week or two... But what if...

Two thousand years ago, people treated the lord of trance, Thanatos, with maximum respect. To meet him — it means to stay there on the other side and those who have come back, they were all together called gods. Immortals, but vulnerable while they stayed in the human body. Thanatos is incorruptible, he is the only god who does not accept and does not love gifts.

What I would like to say is that just like Thanatos, trance is incorruptible. Trance will not allow anyone to play with it or break it like a toy simply out of curiosity.

Trance is a path that unites two worlds, harmonizing two hemispheres. It is neither day nor night; it is light and night. Trance is incorruptible; it is a path that does not love anyone and does not hate anyone. This path does not have favorites. This may not be liked, but I am the master of trance, after all. I never had, have, or will ever have favorites.

What needs to be noted is that all religions without exception regard death with respect and reverence. In some religions, trance is part of the prayer method, and in some, trance is rejected. However, both regard death with reverence. At the root of all religions are immortals — it is those for whom two worlds is dear home. Without them, human civilization does not exist. For those who do not believe in god-people: as long as you remember them, they are still alive; neither fire nor cleansing eradicated them from human existence.

Evolutionary trance — it is death for the “inner-I” that has already happened. Moreover, it is the same transition that you already had, when you transitioned from childhood to young adult and then from youth to mature adult, etc.

All these transitions from the moment of birth — are chains of evolution, and each transition — just like after death, stayed behind you. You crossed one territory of transfer and walked into a different territory of transfer. Step by step, you were dying and resurrecting from death again and again.

You all remember it but do not pay attention to it. You have not been accustomed to the culture of seeing abilities. Religion does not have this, and as result the culture does not have it. Psychologists are also the result of the same culture that already happened. Evolutionary trance is built on the same principle of transfers, obviously expressed, age-related transitions. However, there is the essential difference: the principle of unconscious transition is substituted with the principle of conscious transition, conscious transfer.

This is the next step in the evolution of the kind — crossing, transferring from unconscious-evolutionary being into the conscious-evolutionary being. What I would like to say: trance always accompanied you, only you have not noticed it. It is the same thing as if your parents gifted you train tickets and you are riding the train from one stop to another stop and passionately looking out into the window and do not see the actual train.

The unconscious evolution leans on the unconscious trinity of nature. Every time, you died during the transitions, and the principle of Trinity of Nature unconsciously remained the same within you. It is as if you are looking out of the window and do not notice the train you are riding in.

Both Thanatos and his brother Hypnos are constant participants in this process. They are also riding in this train. One is painting an image outside the window; the other is in the driver's cabin — taking you wherever he wishes. Unconscious trinity, unconscious evolution — it means that you exist in illusions: you see what you see — what is outside the window — vaguely remembering the stops; but you do not see the train.

In order for this not to bother you, I will remind you: all religions are built on the principle “you are seeing that what you see and do not see that what do not know.” This does not bother you after all.

Unlike the unconscious human, Thanatos and Hypnos as immortal gods — are conscious participants of long genetic process. This is hundreds million of years old. Moreover this library of knowledge — is in your genetics. The god brothers are immortal, because you are seeing that what you see, and from generation to generation during the departure from this world you are passing the formula: “you are seeing that what you see and do not see that what you do not know” — knock into the temple doors, you will get all the explanations there, what you do not know and what you should get ready for, the sooner the better.

I speak in such specific language on purpose — I am creating a bridge in the environment of time and transforming the ancient language into a modern comprehensible one. This is your culture. You are the ones who assert that you are descendants of ancient Europe. Question: you will inherit WHAT — skulls, ruins, pieces of philosophy work? Alternatively, do you want to become inheritors of inner essence that what was achieved with unbelievable effort by highly developed shaman-priestly civilization of Mediterranean Europe?

Pagans, idol worshipers, polytheists... — it time to remove this amassed fear from yourself, move beyond it. Pagans, idol worshipers, polytheists — this is your history; these are your roots, these are your fathers; this is your lost chapter from the genetic book of life. The choice is yours: what do you want to inherit? If it is the skulls, marvellous — everything is cultured, civilized, aesthetic, romantic. However, if you want to move forward then you need the book of your history:

Who are YOU, from WHERE and HOW you have arrived into modern day.

The gravitational center in the stomach — it is an alive gyroscope, inseparable from Earth's gravitation. As long as you live, the attention, fixed in space between the eyebrows — in Christianity, this center is called Father — it is not separable from the gravitational center of the stomach. (Even after death the trinity is not separable, it transitions into different quality.) In Christianity, this center in the stomach called Son.

Father and Son — is one and neither is separable from the whole, under this one condition: gravitational breath connects them into one whole trinity of life, in this world and in the other. Everything you see and do not see, everything you know and do not know, is born out of gravitation. Moreover, sooner or later all comes back into it.

Everything in this world transforms — this is self-preservation. It is still the same path: as if from childhood into youth and from youth to adulthood, etc.

Even the immortal elements go through TRANSformation.

IV. Practice HORA® through modern and ancient language

The three gravitational centers identified by me correlate with three main centers of traditional Christian culture, emphasized on human body — Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

Small side note: The thought of playing with the Christian symbols has not come to me neither 10 nor 20 nor 30 years ago, and has not now. However, today there are plenty of religious fanatics; for them, everything seems like "the sacred is under attack."

The world is what it is, and one has to live with people the way that they are, including the ideological crazies and fanatics, who sacredly assured that they are — not ordinary, specially selected, and the only one on the earth that are distinguished by a unique knowledge of right and wrong. Moreover, everyone else who looks at the world differently, thinks differently than them are — sect members. For example, they know how to march correctly: right, left, right, left. However, the others also know for sure it should be: left, right, left, right. Ideologically opposite, irreconcilable. However, no one has learned to march with both feet simultaneously, like a kangaroo. Thus, they continue to walk left-right or right-left, offending the feelings of the kangaroo. The thought that humans can think differently does not occur to them.

Let's return to the main subject. In the text above I have mentioned: In his life, Jesus did not christen anyone, but he himself was submerged in the Jordan River by John the Baptist. He was liberating people from things, and upon seeing Jesus, the prophet recognized in him the Savior. For me this is a key moment, I can doubt the person, but not the prophet.

I will continue. Jesus did not submerge anyone, but by being near him... baptizo happened, people submerged into a different domain. They transformed, and the crippled and the weak returned to health. People were liberated from spiritual and physical sufferings.

The cross symbol of Christianity is inseparable from Christ. Moreover, so it happened, that the three centers emphasized on the Christian cross correlate to the three gravitational centers on the human body and not just on it. Everything that moves, breath, everything that has eyes-attention, also lives and develops as a result of this trinity. The Trinity of Nature principle encompasses all living and nonliving, everything that we see and do not, know and do not know...

One also needs to know that in Hinduism these three centers — are part of the seven skies, seven chakras system, which is preserved from ancient times, when monotheism did not exist. In China, the shamanic-priestly teaching of Taoism — is also more ancient than Christianity. The three main d'ien - t'ien are also correlated with the three gravitational evolutionary centers, like in HORA.

What is the differentiation? None of those systems mentioned above are evolutionary. These are ancient teachings about the transformation of humans, about gods and elements. These teachings are mystical, fantastical and unscientific to the maximum.

What I am trying to say is that three natures of gravitational centers — are something more than simply religious culture. They are in one way or another the foundation of ancient cultures and traditions — ancient, high civilizations.

The masters of that time period spoke in the language that could be used to communicate with people. I thank them because I understand that without them I would be without support, and I would be alone in this world; they are my brothers, teachers, fathers. I am not better than them, but I am not worse. However, the problem does exist: I speak using today's language, and I must with all respect move them aside a bit. They put attention on such things as selection and, as a result, concluded that unusual people could be born into this world only from gods. This is not so. All carry the principles of the trinity of nature, and this includes people. The truth lies in the fact that the human is a social species and follows a leader.

The modern day has brought its own corrections. Freedom erodes the principle of collectivism, and, as a result, personal understanding and personal accountability are required in order to undertake serious steps as in case of, self improvement as humankind. In that social reality, ancients have moved deep into the other world, inaccessible to an unliberated human.

Liberation — it is baptizo by accountability.

The next evolutionary step of humankind, a human will make consciously™.

About Practice

1. Mind, stable psyche, memory — these are the traits of the Father. Maturity. Its quality — to manifest in any age, if the ability to submerge into a spiritual trance has been awakened in you. This means you have been transformed and the environment around you has changed; you have detached from a decrepit body and liberated from all sins — genetic, karmic, individual — and are reborn in a new life.

2. Physical strength, youthfulness, endurance, health — these are the qualities of the Son. Constant readiness, immersiveness, learnability, ability to change and adapt — trance-pliability. The direct path — is the path of accepting the know-how (transfer, mimicking... up to awakening of trance-gravitational universal memory).

3. The living force of gravitation — this is the Holy Spirit. In Biblical representation, it sounds like: "...and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living being" (Genesis 2:7).

I will explain what this means using modern language.

The first breath of a newborn: atmospheric pressure in the gravitational environment pushes the air into the lungs (where at this point the pressure is lower than that of the atmosphere) and starts the "breathing pump" — an active act of entrance, life-saving and unconscious ("nature's cult" of life). It is similar to the turn of the ignition key in a car; the engine begins to move loudly, distributing oil, just like blood in an organism.

Speaking in modern language, the Earth's "god of gravitation" pushes into the human air through barometric pressure, invisible and easily. After that, the human swallows the gravitational energy, which was actively breathed in together with air, processes it like food and everything that is not needed for the organism then breathed out. A stoppage happens — "one cannot breathe in or breathe out," and it is reminiscent somewhat of a computer that has frozen. A moment of decision: to live or to die, to stay or to depart.

While you are young and not tired — you are awakened toward an active life. The organism gets tired with age, a general weariness comes, "hung up," "not living and not dead," a leaning toward "departure" begins, just like on the scale. The "non responsive programs" stop the heart, after which a person "releases his spirit" with a final breath.

Modern people are not well-informed in this. However, any person can test it on himself, that at any point of breathing in or breathing out, he can stop this process. At the moment of departure from life, the person's attention stops in a similar way, hangs up on one of the seven skies. The place one got stuck — there one will end up.

What I would like to say is that the sign of the cross, in reality, is a very serious psychological symbol. This is the symbol of detachment from both life and death. The symbol of spiritual, mindful, and soulful calmness. This is the symbol of how to be born into this world and how to depart it, without the "hang up" between the worlds in the darkness of one's own consciousness. This is a separate theme, for a separate book. In order to open up this symbol all the way, a seven skies system must be unfolded without destroying the world that is left behind and without wobbling the world that awaits us in the future.

Controls and management of gravitational components outside of trance are impossible. This forces a person to turn on his or her entire body simultaneously and in whole, in any, even the smallest motion, including the motionless body position. In a motionless body, one can control the spirit or the gravitational component of a human. This is how trance-gravitational manifestation emerges — attention moves inside and also outside the body as acceptable to human understanding testable power. (HORA tests)

After breathing in, a human relaxes (this is the passive phase) in order to breathe out. After the passive phase of breathing out, an active phase begins — a human puts effort against the gravitational pressure. Next, the chest area expands, in order to breathe in.

To say it another way, when the breathing phase is passive the "god of gravity" is active; and when the phase is active — he is passive. Pressure and resistance continuously accompany you in life. If you understand this correctly, then this method is in its own way a contract executed between "god of gravitation" and a trance-gravitational human, this is a different reality and a different element.

As long as a regular human unconsciously executes this contract, unknown to him, he is alive. A trance-gravitational human executes this contract of life consciously, with ritual. An example of a ritual — Indian yoga. This is not HORA, but without a ritual, any Eastern practice — is fitness with an Eastern flair.

If you cultivate this contract, then you perform a sort of cult ceremony of life, following the contract of Life. A contract based on the principle that the soul is alive “and breathed into his face the breath of life, and man became a living soul” or the awakened soul — a soul that cultivates the breathing of God. The language is old fashioned, but in essence, it can be understood.

In modern language: For the newborn, the first breath in — it is a shock: the entire organism stops and restarts from the beginning. After that, the organism begins to calm down, just like a car engine that has been warmed up — a stable breathing emerges. In part, a similar thing happens when a person is awakened from sleep, gradually, and then finally fully ready for active activities. Awakening from sleep — it is a reproduction of that first breath. (Not quite it, but the original program of first breathing in exists in this awakening, even if it is distorted)

The goal of Practice HORA — is to tune up this moment of correct breathing in and breathing out, on the instinctive level. Come close to the primordial program of rebooting the organism and, through the reboot, tune up on the deep level the cleaning from the accumulated degradations. If the apartment is not cleaned inside — from the “parallel environment”-- dust will appear and a thick layer of dirt will cover everything; the soul has a hard time living in such a house.

Therefore the “program of the first breathing in” — is a key to any type of breathing. It is like an ignition key in the car. Turn the key — get the spark. Turn the key cluelessly — get no spark. This is how, step by step, a human slips from the base “program of the first breathing in,” similar to the example with the ignition. Between the “computer” of the brain, “machine” of the body and the “wires” of the nervous system, program failures accumulate — cause of degradation. The goal of the practice — is to remove these glitches; for starters, the practice returns lightness, vitality, vigor and good health. Then everything after that — is dependent on the level of one’s intellect, to determine important it is or not, is it needed or not.

Practice HORA basic program (basic principles) — training of Life’s principles

In order for the person who is far removed from Practice HORA to get a feel for the essence of the term “basic principles of practice,” I will provide an easily understood example.

Musicians, until their last day, perform the one and same painful for a person musical gamma. Gamma, for the musician is the same as the first prayer “Heavenly Father” given to students by the Savior.

People submerge into the first prayer as in ritual and do it until the end of their days. It is a path. The moment a musician stops submerging into his ritual, he stops his existence as a professional — loses his know-how and loses his path, and even God is incapable of holding him from such a downfall.

The basic principles (i.e., the first level) of Practice HORA are like a gamma for a musician and it is like submergence into a saving trance. One submerges into the ritual always sincerely, openly, defenselessly, and always as if for the first time — detached from life and from death.

The day when a trainee or professional stops leaning on the basic principles of Practice HORA, (First level) he begins to lose his knowledge step by step. Moreover, the professional surely begins a path of self-destruction and decline.

A professional without modesty, humility, and ritual patience — he or she is from the realm of fantasy and cannot be. Alternatively, the person just made a mistake in his life: he or she knocked on the wrong door, or walked into the wrong house.

If we remove from Basic Principle (gamma) even one note, then gamma will begin to deteriorate, and the know-how that is not supported by a ritual will disappear. Something else will emerge that seems to be similar, but it is an imitation. It will have any number of things, but it will not have what you are waiting for — evolutionary know-how, or evolutionary gamma; the evolutionary ritual is missing.

Without Basic Principles it can be any number of things, but it cannot be Practice HORA. Without basic principles, practice does not exist.

1. The Basic Principles of Practice HORA on instinctual level,, forces the cultivation and ingraining of the gravitational type of breathing.
2. Together, with this type of breathing, it forces, cultivates, and activates the entire body.
3. Such action of the body manifests in all species in the moment of objective and environmental attention — in other words in the moment of maximum readiness for action. After which the active phase comes in — run, hide, or attack.
4. For the person, this is the phase of decision making — physical or intellectual.
5. The one who makes decisions fast in nature is the one who is successful as a species.
6. All exercises are designed under the principle that entire body activates in whole.

HOWEVER, a cultural and traditional weakness exists — absence of educational understanding of the points described above and how important it is. Such understanding is absent in the European mentality.

The East, with its own yoga system and forms of martial arts, is capable of grasping the points described above. However, for them, a rational understanding of evolution as a kind, for now, is less important than their own irrational traditions. Time will put all things in their own places — they either reside in the ancient or move forward as a kind.

Practice HORA's first level leans exclusively on the oneness of the instinct of life, trinity of nature, inseparable from gravitation.

The choice must be made by a person himself:
 — Does he need such knowledge as information or not?
 — Does he need such knowledge as know-how or not?
 — Does he need both types of such knowledge as one whole knowledge or not?
